Ep #	Airdate	Title	Synopsis
1	9/15/91	Foreverware	Marshall begins with a tale about odd twins whose permanently peppy mother is obsessed with selling "Foreverware" food-storage containers.
2	9/22/91	The Retainer	When a friend's retainer picks up strange vibrations, Marshall smells trouble, which leads him to believe that, in Eerie "man's best friend" really isn't at all.
3	9/29/91	The ATM Machine	An ATM machine designed by Marshall's dad becomes a personal friend of Simon, providing him with a windfall that seems to be affecting Eerie's economy.
4	10/06/91	The Losers	A quest to find his father's lost briefcase leads Marshall into the very bowels of Eerie, where things have a tendency to vanish without a trace.
5	10/20/91	Scariest Home Videos	Simon and Marshall are cursed on Halloween by an odd occurrence involving Simon's little brother, the TV remote control, and a scary mummy movie.
6	10/27/91	Just Say No Fun	Marshall uncovers a plot by a new school nurse, who's using an eye exam to hypnotize students to make them worker drones incapable of having fun.
7	11/03/91	Heart On a Chain	Marshall and a friend each want to win the heart of the same girl, who has a heart condition that brings her to Eerie hoping to have a transplant.
8	11/10/91	The Dead Letter	Marshall is love's reluctant mail carrier when the ghost of a 1920s smitten teen demands that Marshall deliver a love letter to the spirit's dreamgirl.
9	11/17/91	Who's Who	An artistic girl draws on Marshall's encouragement, and her sketches take on a life of their own. But seeking a perfect family, she pencils in Marilyn as her mom.
10	12/01/91	The Lost Hour	Marshall needs to be saved from daylight saving time (which isn't in effect in Eerie) after he resets his time and falls into a dimension always one hour behind.
11	2/02/92	Marshall's Theory of Believability	Marshall and Simon think they've finally found someone who will believe them — a traveling professor of the "parabelievable" — but should they be believing him?
12	3/01/92	Tornado Days	Matt Frewer drops in as a wacky meteorologist whom Marshall helps battle Tornado Bob during its annual visit to Eerie.
13	3/01/92	The Hole In the Head Gang	Marshall and Simon are startled by a creepy kid who's crashed in an old mill that's haunted by the ghost of Eerie's worst bank robber ever.
14	3/08/92	Mr. Chaney	Trickery makes Marshall the new Harvest King, and he finds the king's traditional task no treat: he must venture to see the "Eerie Wolf."
15	3/15/92	No Brain, No Pain	Marshall and Simon must really use their heads to crack open the real story behind a homeless man who seems to have lost his mind.
16	3/22/92	The Loyal Order of Corn	Something very strange pops up when Simon, Dash, and Marshall try to crack the inner santum of Eerie's odd and exclusive lodge.
17	4/12/92	Zombies In P.J.s	Rene Auberjonois plays "the Donald," a PR wiz who puts Eerie into a shopping spree at World o' Stuff, with E-Z credit — except for the fine print.
18	4/12/92	Reality Takes a Holiday	After finding a TV script in his mailbox, Marshall finds himself in Hollywood, his family out of character and his name "Omri" — who's destined to die in the script.
19	12/09/93	Broken Record	Marshall frets over a buddy who gets heavily into a heavy-metal music band as a release from a father who continually berates him.
		The Jolly Rogers	Pirates who've been searching for their lost treasure these past 700 years learn that it's buried beneath Marshall's house.
